MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

KIRK L. JOWERS

This year, the Hinckley Institute of Politics celebrates its 50th anniversary. Despite its age, it has never been more relevant. Just ask renowned thinker and 2009 Hinckley Fellow Thomas Friedman, who explained in his September 9 New York Times column that internships and mentors are “the things that matter most” when it comes to ensuring that college graduates achieve lasting success in the workplace.

Friedman cited a recent Gallup study showing that graduates who are on the career track they long aspired to, or who are especially engaged at work, have two things in common: they had internships during college that related to their courses of study, and they had at least one mentor who took sincere interest in their goals. The Hinckley Institute offers both of these game-changers, helping students become the people they want to be in today’s global economy.

When Robert H. Hinckley founded this institution in 1965, his goal was to promote respect for practical politics and increase civic engagement at all levels. I am confident that the Hinckley Institute has far exceeded these original expectations.

More than 6,000 students have participated in the Hinckley Institute’s many programs. In its first years, only a handful of Hinckley interns worked locally and in Washington, DC, but now hundreds of students are finding opportunities in more than 50 countries around the world.

Former interns have gone on to serve as legislators, members of Congress, government staffers, local officials, and judges. They have launched non-profit organizations and become attorneys, doctors, educators, engineers, and urban planners. Whatever their major or graduate discipline, Hinckley alumni frequently find their way back to my office to say that their internships made the difference in achieving their career dreams.

Interestingly enough, Gallup’s Education Division Director Brandon Busteed said people are mistaken when they think it makes a significant difference where you go to college. He explained to Friedman: “We found no difference in terms of type of institution you went to—public, private, selective or not—in long-term outcomes. How you got your college education mattered most.”

The Gallup study reinforces my belief (also supported by our 2013 Hinckley Fellow Malcolm Gladwell) that students can in fact have a better educational experience and be more prepared for the workforce at a place like the Hinckley Institute than at some of

Why has the Hinckley Institute achieved so much success over the past half century? Simply said, because of you. Foremost, we extend our deep appreciation to generations of devotion and leadership by the Hinckley family and to all Hinckley Institute alumni: the thousands of students who have completed internships, taken classes, attended forums, and provided hard work and service in varying capacities.

We thank the incredible offices who host our interns semester after semester. We thank our donors who provide generous support to our programs and sustain needed scholarship funds. We thank community members who attend our events, listen to forums on the radio, and partner

“ I CERTAINLY WOULD NOT BE WHERE I AM

TODAY WITHOUT THE FIVE HINCKLEY INTERNSHIPS

I SERVED AS AN UNDERGRADUATE STUDENT. ”

America’s most lauded (and often most expensive) establishments.

Students who come through the Hinckley Institute gain invaluable experience as they work with local, national, and global leaders. The mentoring they receive during and after their internships from colleagues, professors, and advisors can be the difference maker when they apply for their ideal graduate school or job. I certainly would not be where I am today without the five Hinckley internships I served as an undergraduate student, the things I learned and the contacts I made from Hinckley forums and events, and the guidance I received that helped me secure the Truman Scholarship.

with us. We thank the University of Utah community, including administrators and faculty who tirelessly support our programs and students. We truly could not accomplish our mission without your efforts.

We invite you to celebrate with us this year. Throughout 2015, the Hinckley Institute will host a series of 50th-anniversary events, so please visit our website and look for announcements. Your support of our growing number of extraordinary students seeking internships and mentorships will make the difference in their careers for a lifetime.

BRAZIL

Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers and Associate Director Courtney McBeth joined Governor Gary Herbert and First Lady Jeanette Herbert on Utah's first trade mission to Brazil.

Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers and Associate Director Courtney McBeth participated in the Utah Governor's Trade Mission to Brazil from November 4-11, 2014. The trade mission included members of the Governor's Office of Economic Development, World Trade Center Utah, and local business and education leaders.

Jowers and McBeth also met with various global internship host offices in Brazil, as they traveled to both São Paulo and Rio de Janeiro. While in Brazil, Jowers and McBeth reinforced current Hinckley internships with Azul Airlines, Vigzul, and Bamazon Technologies and established new host office connections with partners like the American Chamber of Commerce and the U.S. Embassy. This trade mission laid the ground work and connections for the University of Utah to launch the broader strategic international recruitment efforts in Latin America, specifically starting in Brazil.

Months later, Courtney McBeth traveled back to Brazil with the U's Senior VP Dr. Ruth Watkins and Associate VP of Admission Mary Parker to establish the U's Latin American international recruitment campaign. They established and held the first annual event for the U's Brazil Alumni Club. Hinckley Institute partners and alumni were integral to the success of this innovative university initiative.

TWO GOVERNOR TRADE MISSIONS

MEXICO

Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers additionally joined Governor Herbert on Utah's trade mission to Mexico.

From April 7-10, 2014, Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers joined an executive trade mission to Mexico. Led by Utah Governor Gary Herbert, and organized by the Governor's Office of Economic Development, World Trade Center, and the Hinckley Institute, the Utah delegation concluded a successful trade mission to Mexico to broaden collaboration opportunities in education, innovation, and technology. Thirty-nine business leaders and six government/higher education leaders from Utah accompanied the Governor on the trip.

The Utah delegation met with Secretary of Foreign Relations José Antonio Meade, Estado de Mexico Governor Eruviel Avila, Puebla Governor Moreno Valle, Jalisco's Minister of Economic Development Jose Palacios, Mayor Miguel Angel Mancera of Mexico City, and more than 250 local leaders at various meetings in Mexico City and in Guadalajara. They also attended a networking reception hosted by U.S. Ambassador to Mexico E. Anthony Wayne at his residence in Mexico City.

While visiting Guadalajara and Mexico City, Jowers met with current and prospective internship offices including Grupo Estrategia, Mexico's top lobbying firm. Jowers also participated in an environmental roundtable on improving air quality that included top Mexico City officials and former Hinckley Institute Director Ted Wilson.

PEW CHARITABLE TRUST PARTNERSHIP

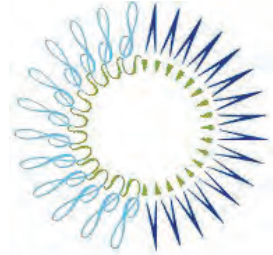

The Hinckley Institute is thrilled to continue its collaboration with Pew Charitable Trusts. In 2014, the Institute will be contributing to three exciting research projects.

ELECTIONS: the Hinckley Institute is analyzing the performance of elections in Utah from 2008 to 2012 and studying efforts to improve voter registration at the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV). In this endeavor, we are working with the Lt. Governor's Office and all 29 County Clerks.

PUBLIC SAFETY: the Hinckley Institute is additionally contributing to Pew's Public Safety

Performance Project which aims to promote awareness and reform of Utah's sentencing and corrections system. In this vein, the Hinckley Institute has provided multiple forums on prison reform and coordinated meetings with elected officials and experts.

HOME VISITS: the Hinckley Institute has also partnered with the Utah Education Policy Center to analyze a grant recently awarded to the Office of Home Visiting in Utah. The Hinckley Institute is coordinating the research and outreach with elected officials that oversee this important program.

THE

THE DIPLOMATIC COURIER COLLABORATION

Over 2014, the Hinckley Institute facilitated the publishing of numerous student articles in the DC-based foreign affairs publication, the Diplomatic Courier. The publication publishes six print editions per year, as well as weekly online content and a daily blog: "On Point." The Diplomatic Courier is known for its independent voice and organization. Publishing opinions from all political spectrums, the Courier adheres to the ideals of freedom of expression, individualism, and fair and balanced journalism. Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers additionally serves on the publication's board.

THE HINCKLEY JOURNAL OF POLITICS

Volume 15 of the annual Hinckley Journal of Politics features student articles by Nicholas Bradford, Andy Moyle, Jordan Roberts, and Tianna Tu with topics ranging from fulfilling global maternal health obligations to Utah's 17th Amendment.

The 2014 volume also contains insightful contributions from multiple public officials. U.S. Congressman Chris Stewart provided a paper entitled, "Congress, the President, and the Lever of Appropriations." Lieutenant Governor Spencer J. Cox contributed a paper entitled "Broken Washington." And Utah State

Representative Angela Romero submitted a thoughtful paper entitled, "Preventing Child Abuse Through Education Should be Utah's Priority."

Student Editors Tianna Tu, Basil Vetas, and Molly Wheeler led a student editorial board consisting of Emily Andrews, Alexandra Butler, Jake Chamberlain, Jill Dobrowolski, Dalton Edwards, Parker Erickson, Lisa Hawkins, Samantha Kern, Ben Manzione, Wogai Mohmand, Angeliki Neofitos, Anthony Oyler, Jordan Roberts, Chris Rondem, and Minna Wang and wish to thank Faculty Editor Dr. Luke Garrott.

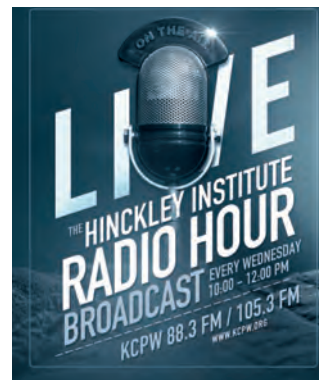

STAFF PUBLICATIONS AND MEDIA

The Hinckley Institute is a central source of discussion and commentary surrounding numerous local, national, and global issues. Hinckley Resident Scholar and former Senator Robert Bennett contributes a weekly opinion editorial in the Deseret News. Hinckley Resident Scholar and former Ambassador John Price's thoughts are frequently featured by The Washington Times. Additionally, Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers provides continual insight and commentary on policies, politics, and news culminating in at least 341 media hits in print, TV, and radio in 2014.

HUNTSMAN SEMINAR

In June, the Hinckley Institute hosted its 15th Annual Huntsman Seminar for teachers and administrators sponsored by the Jon and Karen Huntsman Foundation. The Seminar focuses on improving the quality of civic education in Utah schools. Led by Kirk Jowers, Jayne Nelson, and Dr. Dan Jones, participants gain valuable knowledge and insight into current events in U.S. politics by interacting with political experts, judges, university faculty, and elected officials.

UTAH DEBATE COMMISSION

The Hinckley Institute has partnered with the Utah Debate Commission in producing a series of debates each election cycle involving candidates for statewide and federal office. Multiple Hinckley interns also contributed to the success of the inaugural round of 2014 debates.

NAACP

The Hinckley Institute and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) partnered throughout 2014. Hinckley Institute Director Kirk Jowers served as keynote speaker at the 95th NAACP Annual Life Membership Freedom Fund Banquet. He has previously provided legal advice to the national NAACP organization.

UCCD PARTNERSHIP

In 2014, the Hinckley Institute continued its collaboration with the Utah Council for Citizen Diplomacy (UCCD). UCCD is an independent, nonpartisan, nonprofit 501(C)(3) organization which strives to promote respect and understanding between the people of Utah and other nations. Together with UCCD, the Hinckley Institute helps facilitate exchanges between foreign delegations and Utah professionals and students.

REAL WOMEN RUN

In 2014, the Hinckley's involvement in Real Women Run (RWR) continued to expand. RWR is a collaborative non-partisan effort launched in 2011 by the Hinckley Institute and others to empower women to participate fully in public life and leadership. Hinckley Institute State Program Manager Dr. Morgan Lyon Cotti has been integral to the success of the program including launching RWR on the University of Utah campus.

BOYS STATE

Each year, the Hinckley Institute engages hundreds of high school juniors on the importance of voting at the annual American Legion Boys State Program. Over the week-long session, the students become part of the operation of local, county, and state government through creative simulations.

U.N. WOMEN: UTAH CHAPTER

Supported by the Hinckley Institute, the U.S. National Committee for United Nations Women Utah Chapter completed its second year. The U.N. Women's chapter strives to promote gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls around the world. The Utah Chapter was co-founded by Victoria Baird and Nicole Eberhardt with board member support from Hinckley Institute Associate Director Courtney McBeth and staff assistant Lisa Hawkins.

DEAD SEA SCROLLS

The Hinckley Institute's Wayne Owens Fund sponsored the Leonardo's presentation of the Dead Sea Scrolls: Life and Faith in Ancient Times. The exhibit featured the world's oldest known copy of the Hebrew Bible and a three-ton piece of the Wailing Wall. Approximately 600 artifacts from Jerusalem's Temple Mount were displayed throughout the duration of the exhibit, from November 2013–April 2014. The Wayne Owens Fund was established in 2006 by S. Daniel Abraham for fostering educational opportunities for students and faculty through an endowed professorship.

The Fund also sponsored the University of Utah's Model Arab League.

PROJECT YOUTH

The Hinckley Institute engaged 600 6th grade students from Title I schools with an interactive presentation on civic participation and the importance of voting. Project Youth is sponsored by the Bennion Community Service Center in order to encourage future university attendance among at-risk youth.

HINCKLEY INSTITUTE HOSTS PRESTIGIOUS SUMMIT ON AFRICA

PREVIOUSLY HELD AT HARVARD AND GEORGETOWN,
THE COUNCIL OF AMERICAN AMBASSADORS
CONVENED AT THE UNIVERSITY OF UTAH
TO DISCUSS AFRICA'S ECONOMIC FUTURE.

In October of 2014, dignitaries and experts from around the world, students, educators, and Utah leaders gathered at the University of Utah for the widely anticipated Africa's Future in the Global Economy Summit. Co-hosted by the Council of American Ambassadors (CAA) and the Hinckley Institute of Politics, the historic event featured prominent local, national, and global figures, including Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Linda Thomas-Greenfield, former U.S. Senator Robert Bennett, Utah Governor Gary Herbert, 15 former U.S. Ambassadors, and even a leading expert on Ebola.

The Council of American Ambassadors had previously been hosted by Harvard and Georgetown universities. Accordingly, it was a significant honor for the University of Utah to secure the two-day summit. As a member of the CAA, former U.S. Ambassador—and Hinckley Resident Scholar—John Price was integral in bringing the conference to the University of Utah campus. For over a year, Ambassador Price and Hinckley Institute staffers met regularly to plan the immense event.

Early on, Ambassador Price had the remarkable vision to involve as many students as possible in the sessions—which are typically constrained to the diplomatic community.

The result was a tremendous success and was celebrated by Council members and students alike. The Former Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs deemed the conference “more informative than 30 days of State Department briefings,” and another attending dignitary stated it was “better than the World Global Forum.” Connor Yakaitis, a Political Science student, was moved by the proceedings: “The optimism and hope that resonated from the speakers and the many individuals who traveled to the summit from Africa has inspired me to consider focusing my studies towards development and sustainability on a continent with so much potential.” CAA leadership was equally thrilled to engage with hundreds of motivated students and declared their desire to make the University of Utah “conference model” the norm.

The prestigious event was spearheaded by Former U.S. Ambassador—and Hinckley Resident Scholar—John Price.

On Monday, October 20, Ambassador Timothy A. Chorba, President of the Council of American Ambassadors, welcomed Conference attendees, and Kirk Jowers, Director of the Hinckley Institute of Politics, introduced Governor of Utah Gary Herbert, who pointed out that a number of Utah businesses have increased their trade with Africa. Following Governor Herbert's remarks, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Linda Thomas-Greenfield took the stage. Assistant Secretary Thomas-Greenfield presented a tour d'horizon of Africa and outlined U.S. priorities for the continent.

Former Ambassador to Nigeria John Campbell provided valuable insight into the rise of Boko Haram in Nigeria. He was followed by Colonel John C. Garrett, USMC (Ret.), who gave an overview of the security challenges facing the continent.

After the morning session, former Utah Governor and U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services Michael Leavitt served as the keynote luncheon speaker. Referencing the Ebola crisis, he stressed the importance of providing U.S. healthcare assistance to nations grappling with epidemics.

Dr. Daniel Bausch, an Ebola expert recently returned from West Africa, opened the afternoon session. Dr. Bausch's informative presentation clarified the causes and transmission of Ebola and underscored that the long-term solution to the crisis in Africa is better healthcare infrastructure and improved access to clean water. Next, Ms. Rosa Whitaker, who served as Assistant U.S. Trade Representative for Africa in the Clinton and Bush administrations, discussed the importance of the African Growth and Opportunity Act (AGOA), which provides duty-free market access to the United States for qualifying Sub-Saharan African countries. She emphasized the importance of trade to Africa's future development, noting that trade is worth five times more than aid, and advocated for the permanent extension of AGOA.

Dr. Joshua Eisenman was the final conference presenter on October 20. He analyzed China's role in Africa as well as perceptions of Chinese businesses in Africa. CAA member Ambassador Donald T. Bliss provided closing remarks. The day concluded with a reception and dinner at the Utah Museum of Fine Arts, at which University of Utah President Dr. David Pershing was the keynote speaker.

On Tuesday, October 21, Ambassador John Price, Chairman of the Africa Conference Host Committee, opened the Conference's second day and introduced former U.S. Senator Robert Bennett. Following Senator Bennett's remarks, Mr. Stephen Hayes, President and CEO of the Corporate Council on Africa, discussed infrastructure development in Africa. He advocated for increased U.S. business investment in Africa and called on the U.S. Government to promote investment opportunities in African nations.

Last, CAA member Ambassador Delano E. Lewis, Sr. (Ambassador to South Africa, 1999-2001) moderated a panel discussion entitled, "Investing in Africa's Future," featuring businessman and investor James Sorenson, investment manager Laura Geritz, and Director of Business Development for the Utah Governor's Office of Economic Development Marshall N. Wright. The Conference concluded with a luncheon, at which U.S. Senator Orrin Hatch was the keynote speaker.

Ultimately, the conference was a pronounced success and further established the Hinckley Institute and the University of Utah on the global stage.

The poster features logos for the Council of American Ambassadors, the Hinckley Institute at the University of Utah, and the African Chamber of Commerce of Utah. The main title is "AFRICA'S FUTURE IN THE GLOBAL ECONOMY" in large white letters. Below it, the dates "OCTOBER 20-21" and the location "SPENCER FOX ECCLES BUSINESS BUILDING" are listed. A section titled "KEYNOTE SPEAKERS:" includes three portraits: Governor Gary Herbert, Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs Linda Thomas-Greenfield, and Former U.S. Senator Robert Bennett. At the bottom, it states "PREVIOUSLY HOSTED BY HARVARD AND GEORGETOWN" and "FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC". A website URL "www.africaseconomicfuture.org" is provided for the full schedule. Logos for Zions Bank, African Chamber of Commerce of Utah, and The University of Utah are at the bottom.

ROBERT H. HINCKLEY SR. AND FAMILY

MEET THE VISIONARIES BEHIND THE HINCKLEY INSTITUTE

ROBERT H. HINCKLEY SR. was a man of unparalleled vision and foresight, a 20th century pioneer, a philanthropist, an entrepreneur, and an untiring builder of education and the American political system.

Hinckley Sr. served a decorated political career, beginning as a state legislator from Sanpete County and a mayor of Mount Pleasant. Following these tenures, he served as the Utah director for the New Deal under President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Hinckley worked in various capacities in Washington, DC, including overseeing the establishment of the Civilian Pilot Training Program, serving as Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Air, and as Director of the Office of Contract Settlement. For these services, Hinckley was applauded as “one of the real heroes of the Second World War.”

Indeed, Hinckley correctly anticipated increased Japanese aggression and designed a program to provide pilot training for college students at 700 universities. Skeptics called the program “Hinckley boondoggle,” but criticism dissipated when Japan bombed Pearl Harbor four years later. To Hinckley’s credit, 65,000 pilots were ready for final training upon U.S. entrance into World War II. Multiple Air Force generals have lauded Hinckley’s foresight for shortening the war by at least two years. In recognition of his courageous vision, the FAA presented him in 1983 with their highest honor, the Award for Extraordinary Service. In 1946, he jointly founded the American Broadcasting Company (ABC) with Edward Noble. In two decades, they helped build ABC into the major network it is today.

In 1965, Robert H. Hinckley established the Hinckley Institute of Politics through a contribution of his own and a bequest from the Noble Foundation in order to “arouse responsible involvement in partisan politics and to deepen citizen awareness of politics as an honorable and significant profession.” At that time, the Institute was one of very few similar organizations in the country. Reflecting on all of his accomplishments he remarked, “The Hinckley Institute is one of the most important things I will have ever done.”

Robert H. Hinckley was married to Abrelia Clarissa Hinckley and together they had four children.

ROBERT H. HINCKLEY JR. attended Stanford University, the United States Military Academy, and the University of Chicago. He served 13 years in the military and was awarded the prestigious Croix de Guerre with Bronze Star for his participation in the liberation of France. He flew 35 combat missions with the 8th Airforce from 1943–1945 and several missions in the Korean War. He served numerous leadership roles throughout his career, including as Director of Alta Industries and President of the Utah Automobile Dealers Association. Hinckley Jr. assumed the role of Chairman of the Hinckley Institute of Politics following his father’s death in 1988. In 1996, he was awarded an Honorary Alumnus by the University of Utah. He was married to Janice Scowcroft and together they had four children. He was known for his pragmatic optimism and saying, “I wish to have you know that I have had no problems in this world. I have had only opportunities.”

JAMES S. “JIM” HINCKLEY is the current Hinckley Institute Chairman, a position he has held since the death of his father, Robert H. Hinckley Jr., in 2005. He and his wife, Lyn, are the heart and soul of the Hinckley Institute and beloved by students. Jim retired as a third generation Dodge dealer in 2013 and was inducted into the Utah International Auto Expo’s Hall of Fame. He purchased Hinckley Dodge in 1987 after 25 years in the car business. He has worked in all aspects of the car business including entry level detail work, parts management, sales, and other odd jobs. In 2007, he added the Chrysler and Jeep franchises. Jim and Lyn have been incredibly giving of their resources, time, attention, and love to Hinckley students. They not only meet with students in Utah, but also provide resources to students in Washington, DC. Over 6,000 current and former students have benefited from the Hinckley Institute and the legacy led by Jim and Lyn Hinckley.

NOTEWORTHY ALUMNI

KARL ROVE — Former Deputy Chief of Staff for Pres. George W. Bush

Hinckley Internship: Utah Republican Party

*“The Institute led me to my first paid job in politics at the age of 19.
And the rest is history.”*

Karl Rove served as Senior Advisor to President George W. Bush from 2000–2007 and Deputy Chief of Staff from 2004–2007. At the White House, he oversaw the Offices of Strategic Initiatives, Political Affairs, Public Liaison, and Intergovernmental Affairs and was Deputy Chief of Staff for Policy, coordinating the White House policy-making process. Before Rove became known as “The Architect” of President Bush’s 2000 and 2004 campaigns, he was president of Karl Rove + Company, an Austin-based public affairs firm that worked for Republican candidates, non-partisan causes, and non-profit groups. His clients included over 75 Republican U.S. Senate, Congressional, and gubernatorial candidates in 24 states, as well as the Moderate Party of Sweden. Rove writes a weekly op-ed for the Wall Street Journal and is the author of the New York Times best-seller, Courage and Consequence: My Life as a Conservative in the Fight. He has contributed to various publications including The Daily Beast, Financial Times, Forbes, FoxNews.com, HumanEvents.com, Newsweek, The Times, Washington Post, and The Weekly Standard.

PATRICIA JONES — Former Utah Senator

Hinckley Internship: KSL News

*“The Hinckley Institute was instrumental in instilling in me an appreciation for government.
It opened the door to a new, exciting world of service in the Utah State Legislature.”*

Patricia Jones served in the Utah Legislature as a Representative from 2002–2006 and as a Senator from 2006–2014. Jones functioned in a variety of leadership positions including the Minority Leader and the Assistant Minority Whip. Jones earned a BA in journalism from the University of Utah. She is married to Dan Jones, a pollster and former political science professor at the University of Utah. Jones was president of Dan Jones & Associates and is considered to be one of the top focus group moderators in the country. She is currently the CEO of the new Women’s Leadership Institute which promotes the elevation of the stature of female leadership in Utah. The Hinckley Institute is thrilled to work with Patricia Jones again as she helps train our future legislative interns on the ins and outs of the Utah State Legislature.

BEN MCADAMS — Mayor of Salt Lake County

Hinckley Internship: The White House

*“The Hinckley Institute is the only reason I’m in politics today.
Now, I’ve had the opportunity to have Hinckley Interns work for me.”*

Ben McAdams was sworn into office as Salt Lake County Mayor on Jan. 7, 2013. Mayor McAdams pledged to work collaboratively, across party lines, to find efficiencies in county government, and to be open and accountable to citizens. During his tenure as County Mayor, he has championed education—helping the county become the first in the country to partner with the private sector to offer greater access to high-quality preschool for low-income children. Mayor McAdams has also emphasized economic development and job growth, partnering with cities to attract business while being a careful steward of taxpayer dollars. He has additionally supported greater access for businesses and residents to transit, trails, and open space. Mayor McAdams is a graduate of the University of Utah and Columbia Law School. After Columbia Law School, he worked as a corporate finance attorney with firms in New York and Salt Lake City. Ben and his wife, Julie (a fellow Columbia Law School graduate) have four children.

Inducted April 12, 1996

Frank E. Moss represented Utah as a member of the U.S. Senate from 1959 to 1977. He was an expert on water issues, supported the creation of additional national parks inside Utah, and sponsored significant consumer protection legislation, including the Product Safety Act and Poison Prevention Packaging Act. Born on September 23, 1911, in Holladay, Utah, he married Phyllis Hart in 1943 and had four children. Mr. Moss graduated from the University of Utah and George Washington University Law School. He was elected a judge in the Salt Lake City Municipal Court and later participated in WWII as a member of the J.A.G. corps.

SCOTT M. MATHESON, GOVERNOR OF UTAH

Inducted April 12, 1996

Scott M. Matheson was Utah's 12th governor, holding office from 1977 to 1985. He was a strong supporter of public education and an effective advocate for the state in matters ranging from opposing deployment of the MX missile system and storage of wet eye nerve gas in Utah to promoting the Central Utah Project and land exchanges between the federal and state governments. Born on January 8, 1929, in Chicago Illinois, he married Norma Warenski in 1951 and had four children. Mr. Matheson graduated from the University of Utah and Stanford Law School. He served in several legal positions, including Deputy Salt Lake County Attorney, legal counsel to the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and President of the Utah State Bar.

NORMAN H. BANGERTER, GOVERNOR OF UTAH

Inducted April 12, 1996

Norman H. Bangerter, was Utah's 13th governor, and served from 1985 to 1993. He significantly improved the state's education system and economic development programs during his tenure as governor. Born on January 4, 1933, in Granger, Utah, he married Coleen Monson in 1953, and together they raised seven children. Mr. Bangerter attended the University of Utah and Brigham Young University. He founded his own construction company and was a major contractor in Utah's home building and real estate development industries. Mr. Bangerter served as a member of the Utah State House of Representatives for 10 years, including for four years as Speaker of the House.

JAMES V. HANSEN, U.S. REPRESENTATIVE

Inducted January 27, 2003

James V. Hansen represented Utah in the United States House of Representatives from 1981 to 2003. He was a strong advocate of multiple-use development of natural resources on public lands. Mr. Hansen served as a ranking member on several House committees and used his influence to maintain and promote Utah's defense and aerospace industries. Born on August 14, 1932, he married Ann Burgoyne in 1957 and had five children. Following his service in the Korean War, Mr. Hansen graduated from the University of Utah and began his career in business. He served as a member of the Farmington City Council and later as Speaker of the Utah State House of Representatives.

OLENE S. WALKER, GOVERNOR OF UTAH

Inducted March 10, 2005

Olene S. Walker was Utah's 15th governor from 2003–2005—the first woman to hold the office. She made significant contributions in the areas of education, literacy, housing, and tax policy during her tenure. Born on November 15, 1930, in Ogden, Utah, she married Myron Walker in 1954 and had seven children. Ms. Walker received her undergraduate, masters, and doctoral degrees from Brigham Young University, Stanford University, and the University of Utah, respectively. She served as a member of the Utah State House of Representatives (where she became majority whip) and as Utah's first female Lieutenant Governor.

WAYNE OWENS, U.S. REPRESENTATIVE

Inducted April 12, 2007

Wayne Owens represented Utah in the United States House of Representatives from 1972–1974 and again from 1986–1992. Mr. Owens received his law degree from the University of Utah. He walked 711 miles through Utah to win the seat in 1972. Once in office, he voted to stop funding the Vietnam War and impeach Richard Nixon; he also championed many environmental causes, compensation for "downwinders," and peace in the Middle East. Born on May 2, 1937, he married Marlene Wessel in 1961, and together they raised five children. After leaving Congress, he co-founded and served for 10 years as President of the Center for Middle East Peace and Economic Cooperation.

BRENT SCOWCROFT, NATIONAL SECURITY ADVISOR

Inducted October 23, 2008

Lieutenant General Brent Scowcroft, USAF (Ret.), served as Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs to Presidents Gerald Ford and George H.W. Bush. He also served as Military Assistant to President Richard Nixon and as Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs to Presidents Ford and Nixon. He was awarded hundreds of military and policy recognitions, including the Medal of Freedom Award. General Scowcroft was born in Ogden, Utah, and has one daughter with his wife, Marian Horner Scowcroft. He received his undergraduate degree and commission from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and his masters and doctoral degrees from Columbia University. He is the founder and President of the Forum for International Policy and the President of the Scowcroft Group, Inc.

SCHOLARSHIP RECIPIENTS

The Hinckley Institute awarded $29,000 in academic scholarships during 2014.

TRUMAN SCHOLARSHIP

Hinckley student Tianna Tu secured the highly competitive Truman Scholarship.

Hinckley student Tianna Tu was one of 59 selected as a 2014 Truman Scholar making the University of Utah the only school to have produced a Truman Scholar in seven of the last eight years.

Tianna exhibits exceptional academic abilities by maintaining an impressive 3.99 GPA while pursuing Dual Honors Degrees in Political Science and International Studies. She has served three Hinckley internships, working for the Utah Council for Citizen Diplomacy, as an intern for the Utah State Legislature with the House Minority Leader, and as an intern for the U.S. State Department International Organization Affairs, Human Rights Council in Washington, DC. Tianna is also an accomplished writer and served as a 2014 co-editor for the Hinckley Journal of Politics, which also featured her work, "Fulfilling Global Maternal Health Obligations: A Right's Based Approach."

While her academic record is remarkable, it is Tianna's extensive community involvement and leadership that truly set her apart. Notably, drawing from her own community experience in which higher education was not the norm, she organized an extensive mentoring program for underprivileged high school girls to encourage them to attend college and apply for scholarships; in this capacity she has mentored more than 250 students who have gone on to excel at the college level.

As the daughter of a Vietnamese boat refugee, Tianna has seen first hand how human rights abuses and the ravages of war can leave individuals and communities broken for generations; this unique background has inspired her to dedicate her life to promoting change in areas relating to democracy, development, and international policy. Her Truman Scholarship Policy Proposal advocates for human rights integration in the Post-2015 U.N. Millennium Development Goals agenda.

Commenting on her selection, Tianna stated, "I am incredibly thankful to have been selected as a Truman Scholar, and I attribute so much of this recognition to the dedicated faculty and staff at the University of Utah. It is an honor to be recognized among so many other talented candidates. I am excited to continue my journey of public service, and hope my selection empowers other young leaders to aspire for greatness and pursue seemingly unachievable goals."

Hinckley Institute Director Jowers, who received the Truman Scholarship in 1990 said, "Tianna is worthy of this honor in every way; as a Truman Scholar, she will represent the Hinckley Institute and the University of Utah with distinction. Now with the merit and opportunities attributed to Truman Scholars, she will be that much more effective in advocating for human rights."

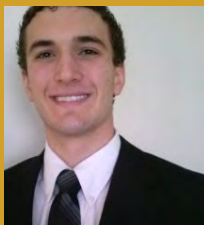

ROBERT H. HINCKLEY GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP

Justin Zizumbo is pursuing a Master's Degree in Social Work at the University of Utah. He is currently working with Juvenile Justice Services as a clinical social work intern. Justin secured his undergraduate in Social Work from Utah State University and is anticipating graduating from the University of Utah in 2015.

ABRELIA CLARISSA HINCKLEY GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIP

Anna Solomon Edelman graduated from the University of Utah with a BA in international studies. She is currently finishing her last semester in the Master of Public Administration program at the U, with an emphasis in nonprofit management and educational leadership. Anna works as a graduate assistant for the MPA program, conducting research and facilitating nonprofit workshops for University Neighborhood Partners. Anna has participated in various Hinckley internships, the highlight being her internship with Eagle Condor in Peru.

JOHN & ANNE HINCKLEY SCHOLARSHIP

Trent Giove is currently an accounting student in the University of Utah's Business School. He has completed two internships with the Hinckley Institute, both, locally and in DC. He is actively involved within the community and volunteers at the U's hospital during his free time. After graduation, Trent plans on making public service an avid part of his career and will focus on improving the community around him.

MATHESON LEADERSHIP SCHOLARSHIP

Lisa Hawkins is pursuing an honors degree in political science as well as in communication with an emphasis in journalism and a BS in economics. Lisa has served internships with the Governor's Office, NGOs in India and Botswana, and Channel 2 News. She is currently an Associate at the Sorenson Global Impact Investing Center. Her goals after graduation are to attend law school and enter the field of global development.

MATHESON LEADERSHIP SCHOLARSHIP

Kendahl Melvin is a senior pursuing degrees in honors political science, economics, and international studies. She has previously interned in the European Parliament in Brussels, Belgium, and locally with the Governor's Office of Economic Development and the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce. She is the former University of Utah Senior Class President and member of the varsity women's track and field team. Kendahl hopes to attend law school and one day serve as a United States Congresswoman.

THE HINCKLEY STAFF

The Hinckley Institute staff are committed to championing our 50-year legacy.

The Hinckley Institute of Politics has accrued a staff of passionate and highly talented individuals. The ever growing team includes Kirk Jowers, Director; Jayne Nelson, Associate Director; Courtney McBeth, Associate Director and Director of the U's Global Internship Program; Gina Shipley, National Program Manager; Dr. Morgan Lyon Cotti, State Program Manager; Ellesse Balli, Communications and Academic Coordinator; Molly Wheeler, Administrative Program Coordinator; Dr. Tim Chambless, Academic Outreach Coordinator and Associate Professor Lecturer; former Utah Senator Pat Jones, Adjunct Instructor; Kendahl Melvin, Student Staffer; Lisa Hawkins, Student Staffer, Montana Martínez, Student Staffer; (not pictured) Rochelle Parker, Communications and Academic Assistant; Matt and Emily Sanderson, Washington, DC, Liaisons; Dr. Tabitha Benney, Hinckley Journal of Politics Faculty Editor and Associate Professor-Lecturer; Dr. Dan Jones, Emeritus Professor Lecturer; Jerry Howe, Adjunct Instructor; Doug Foxley, Associate Instructor; Frank Pignanelli; former Senator Robert F. Bennett, Hinckley Resident Scholar; and former Ambassador John Price, Hinckley Resident Scholar.

NEW TO OUR TEAM

Gina Shipley, MPA – National Program Manager

Gina Shipley oversees the national internship program and the academics of the DC program. Prior to joining the Hinckley Institute, she worked for six years as the Director of the Office of Advising and Inclusion within the College of Social and Behavioral Science. She has extensive experience with the Hinckley Institute's programs, both as a Hinckley student and during her time as a University of Utah student advocate. She is also a co-instructor of Ambassador Price's think tank, co-instructor for the Capital Encounter internship, and oversees the Hinckley's national internship courses. Ms. Shipley graduated with a Master of Public Administration from the University of Utah; her thesis explored the importance of internships and how they catalyze classroom knowledge. She also graduated with a BA in history and geography with a secondary education license from Brigham Young University. Gina is married to David and has three children, two of whom graduated from the University of Utah this past year.

Molly Wheeler – Administrative Program Coordinator

Molly Wheeler is the outreach coordinator and research assistant for the Hinckley Institute. She graduated May 2014 with a double major in political science and international studies magna cum laude as well as campaign management minor and honors certificate. Molly was incredibly active with the Hinckley Institute during her undergraduate experience, completing four internships (including the Utah Legislature, DC, and British Parliament programs), co-editing the 2014 Hinckley Journal, and conducting research for Senator Bennett. Molly plans on pursuing an MPP/PhD and is interested in political participation and the electoral process. Molly also serves on the board for Breathe Utah, a group focused on scientific, medical, legal and communications aspects of air quality in Utah.

Patricia Jones – Adjunct Instructor

Patricia Jones served in the Utah Legislature as a Representative from 2002–2006 and a Senator from 2006–2014. Jones functioned in a variety of leadership positions including the Minority Leader and the Assistant Minority Whip. Patricia earned a BA in journalism from the University of Utah. She is married to Dan Jones, a pollster and former political science professor at the University of Utah. Patricia was president of Dan Jones & Associates and is considered to be one of the top focus group moderators in the country. She is currently the CEO of the new Women's Leadership Institute which promotes the elevation of the stature of female leadership in Utah. The Hinckley Institute is thrilled to work with Patricia Jones again as she helps train our future legislative interns on the ins and outs of the Utah State Legislature.

Montana Martínez – Student Staffer

Montana was born and raised in Utah in an interracial family and is entering his senior year and the University of Utah. He has completed multiple Hinckley internships including in Washington, DC, with Senator Orrin Hatch and most recently at a top lobbying firm in Mexico City, Mexico. Montana plans to apply to law school, specifically working in international law with an emphasis on human rights.

The Hinckley Institute is thrilled to announce our inaugural eight 2014–2015 Student Ambassadors. These students were selected from a highly competitive and extensive applicant pool. They have worked closely with the Hinckley Institute throughout the year on projects, outreach, and more. We wish to congratulate these students on their achievements and look forward to further collaboration.

IN MEMORIAM: DR. RALPH BROWN

We bid a heartfelt farewell to our beloved colleague, friend, and inspiration.

Dr. Brown (pictured on the far right) passed away from cancer in 2014.

Hinckley Institute International Advisor and BYU Professor of Sociology and Director of the International Development Minor Dr. Ralph Brown passed away in August after a courageous battle with pancreatic cancer. Dr. Brown was a rural sociologist by training with expertise in rural, agricultural, and community development.

For the past nine years, the Hinckley Institute had the privilege of working with Dr. Brown. He was an instrumental partner in the development of our global programs in Jordan, India, and Southeast Asia. Indeed, Dr. Brown paved the way for substantive collaboration between BYU and the University of Utah.

Dr. Brown was a passionate instructor and was committed to immersing his students in Southeast Asian cultures. We will greatly miss his invaluable expertise, his tireless dedication, and his swift sense of humor.
